Merely for making a record of the fact that the action of a portion of Bibb's representatives was creating some comment in Macon, THE CONSTITUTION'S Macon correspondent was made the object of a personal and malicious attack on the floor of the house of representatives by one of the members from Bibb who had championed the fight against the people of his travities compensating advantages. But there are none. The benefits accrue to the factories and shipping interests of the northern states, and not to the interests of the south in an considerable degree. They are as one-sided as a jugg handle; and it would only be fair play to postpone a few of them until a treaty could be negotiated with some other country that would give the south some compensating advantages. Commercial treaties are, of course, strictly questions of policy, and the south has a right to say whether she can afford to vote to lessen her own profits for the purpose of adding to the profits of northern ships and factories.

THROUGH THE CITY

EVENTS OF INTEREST GATHERED UP ABOUT TOWN.

Happenings here and there in the courts, at the Capitol, around the station house and on the streets. Minor News Notes Caught Up on the Sidewalk—Gossip in the Outlets.

Registration for the county election is progressing slowly.

Mr. W. H. Prizzell yesterday lost on the street a check for $500.

The passenger traffic is good with all the roads entering Atlanta.

The ladies' fair in the Centennial hall is drawing a large crowd every night.

Patrolman Poole has a diamond pin which the owner can get by proving property.

Mrs. F. A. Hilburn fired five shots at a thief who was stealing her wood Wednesday night.

Seven additions were made to the city council yesterday during the session of the police court.

There will be a musical festival and jug banding at the Third Presbyterian Sabbath school to night.

Mr. Newton Simmons, who is here in charge of the fish commissioners' car, says he will be here about a week longer.

The city council will meet in regular session next Monday night. This will be the last meeting of the present council except one.

Dr. Willis Westmoreland's team ran away with his carriage on College street before yesterday. The carriage was badly demolished.

Pure Jersey milk, cream and butter, delivered every day at your door from Hilldale Jersey farm. Send your orders to L. J. & A. W. Hill, Gate City National bank.

Henry James, the darkey who was arrested day before yesterday, charged with stealing thirty dollars from Mr. Wolvin at the Porter house, was not in the police court. He had been employed for only one day's work.

The two vacancies in the board of directors of the Young Men's library have been filled. Mr. C. D. Woodson takes the place of Mr. S. F. Farwell, removed to Texas, and Mr. Jack Snodgrass, the place of Mr. C. D. Meador, removed to Memphis.

Guests at the executive mansion late years will not fail to recall Anthony Manley, the police and stable butler. He was married last night to Anne Thompson, one of the belles of our colored population. The couple were the recipients of many kind expressions from their numerous white friends.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. T. A. Robinson's horse and buggy disappeared from the hitching post in front of his office on Broad street, but later in the evening, after the police had been searching for the turn out, it came up again. The horse had been driven away by a gentleman who thought it belonged to Mr. Stead.

On Tuesday last Governor McDaniel appointed Hon. John D. Hearl, of Bainbridge, to a position on his staff, with the rank and title of lieutenant colonel. This action on the part of the Governor is a high compliment to an estimable and deserving gentleman, whose merit and worth are as fully appreciated by his colleagues in the legislature as by the people of this section.

The residence of Mr. F. P. Reynolds, on Kimball street, was entered by a burglar last night before last. Mr. Reynolds was awakened by a noise that proved to be the burglar's collision with the hall lamp, which was hanging low and unlighted. Notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Reynolds arose hastily to investigate the noise, the burglar with greater haste took his departure through the window, by which he had forced his way in. No loss was taken from the residence so far as is known.

SUSPENDED FROM DUTY.

Patrolman Wynn and Supernumerary Jones of duty.

A special order suspending Patrolman Wynn and Supernumerary Jones from duty, was issued by Chief Connolly yesterday morning, and the members of the police force will perform no more police work until the charges to be preferred against them can be investigated by the board of police commissioners.

Patrolman Wynn's case promises to be an interesting one. At the November meeting of the board of police commissioners a resolution was adopted requiring the captain to make a monthly report touching the conduct of the patrolmen under their direction. In that report the captains were required to enumerate the patrolmen who were especially efficient in the discharge of duties and who were particularly serviceable while on duty. The first of these reports were submitted to the board at their meeting last Monday night. Patrolman Wynn was under Captain Couch and his name did not appear on the roll of names deserving special mention by Captain Couch. The omission of the patrolman's name from the list did not please him and yesterday morning at one o'clock when Captain Couch's squad came off duty Patrolman Wynn approached Captain Couch, who was standing in the company of police headquarters, and made some remark about the report. The captain gave the patrolman what information he asked, but this did not satisfy him, and the remarks he made to his superior officer were not full of respect. Yesterday morning Captain Couch sought Chief Connolly and asked that Patrolman Wynn be suspended from duty until the charges against him could be investigated.

Superintendent Jones will answer the charge of using intoxicating liquors.

DIED IN THE ASYLUM.

Mr. James Cannon, of Atlanta, Dies in Millidgeville—His Body Brought Home.

The remains of Mr. James Cannon, of this city, who died last night in the insane asylum at Millidgeville, reached Atlanta night before last and was buried in Oakland cemetery yesterday morning.

Mr. Cannon was committed to the asylum about three years ago. Previous to that time he was well known in Atlanta, where he had resided for many years. He was by trade a brass moulder for years had been working in the Western and Atlantic shops, brass moulder has never been a healthy occupation and many men have given up their work while still in the shop. About a year before being sent to the asylum Mr. Cannon was badly poisoned by the air he was compelled to breathe while in his workshop, and for quite a while it was thought he would die from the effects. But good nursing and careful attention brought him through all right in body. His mind, however, was gone, and as he grew stronger physically his friends were grieved to see his reason dethroned. Finally, about three years ago, he was committed to the asylum, his friends believing that his mental power would be restored, and the best medical attention was given him. He grew better very slowly. At times his mind would be perfectly clear, and then again the heavy clouds of insanity would settle upon him. He was seized with an apoplectic fit, and at intervals these fits returned and on Saturday last one of them killed him. On Sunday morning his body was taken to the cemetery in Millidgeville, where it was exhumed and placed in a casket preparatory to being brought to Atlanta. Letters notifying the ordinary of Fulton county and Mr. Cannon's relatives of his death were sent out by the officials at the asylum and on Tuesday last Mr. Cannon's brother, Mr. J. M. Cannon, for the remains. When the body reached Atlanta night before last, a large number of the dead man's friends met it at the Union passenger depot and a much larger crowd attended the funeral yesterday morning from the church of Immaculate Conception. Mr. Cannon was about thirty-five years of age and leaves a wife and five children. His estate is worth probably seven thousand dollars.

HENRY DURAND'S HONEY.

The Fly Restaurant Pays Twenty-Five Cents Per Pound for Sorghum.

Early yesterday morning a countryman entered the crashed restaurant and approaching Mr. Durand, the proprietor, said:

"What's the honey?"

"Fresh?" asked Mr. Durand.

"Yes. Just out of the hive," said the man.

"How much have you?"

"Fifty pounds, and it is nice, I tell you."

"What do you want for it?"

"Twenty-five cents a pound for it. Went it?"

"Yes, I'll take it all. Bring it in," said Mr. Durand as he turned to one of his waiters and directed him to help the countryman with the honey. In a few seconds they returned with a large tin can about three feet high and half as wide, in which the honey was packed. The man was placed on the elevator, and as it started up-stairs the man approached the counter and said:

"Fifty pounds—your man saw it weighed—twenty-five cents a pound is twelve dollars and a half. Give me thirteen dollars and keep the can."

"All right," said Mr. Durand, as he hailed out three or four waiters, which the countryman pocketed as he went out the door. All that afternoon Mr. Durand smiled all over his face, and when he made up his bill-of-fare for supper he had not hot cakes and honey. This he meant to treat to his boarders, and when supper time came he instructed the waiters to bring down the honey. They went to the large tin can and began filling their dishes with the comb, dripping with good thick honey, and when the first dish came down Mr. Durand called it up and carrying it to a table with Mr. Warren Jordan and Shook Doyle were sitting, placed it before them, saying:

"Boys, here's a treat. Taste that good country honey and then tell me how you like it."

Both boarders made a dive for a dish and both helped themselves liberally, but after taking a mouthful Mr. Doyle said:

"Henry, this ain't no honey."

"Well, I guess it is," said Mr. Durand, "and I've got just fifty pounds of the same sort up stairs."

"Well, I tell you it ain't," said Mr. Doyle again. "Is it, Warren?"

"It's not an awful funny taste to me," was Mr. Jordan's reply. "Suppose you taste it, Henry," he continued, turning to Mr. Durand.

Mr. Durand picked up the spoon and dropped the comb into his mouth. In a second he spit it out, and with a look of "I can't understand it" on his face, said:

"Well, I bought it for honey, but hang me if it don't taste like sorghum honey to me."

He then went to the tin can and after a careful investigation found that the comb had been robbed of every drop of the honey and placed in the tin, which several gallons of sorghum had been poured over it. The investigation was thorough, and when completed, Mr. Durand knew beyond a question that he had paid thirteen dollars for a dollar's worth of cheap molasses. He then returned to the dining room and approaching Messrs. Doyle and Jordan, said:

"Well, that beats all I ever heard of. I was swindled by the greenest looking man I ever saw. He came in here this morning and you ought to have seen him. He was quite well up in age. He wore a blue jeans coat that came below his knees. He had a pair of brown jeans breeches that were two inches too short. He talked so easy that I never suspected anything, and I was certain he was sure that I never looked into the can. But don't you boys say anything about it and I will set you up to a week's board each. Frank Lester was with me, and I thought it and I want him to eat some of it."

But the joke was too good to keep and every body who took supper at the crashed restaurant last night asked for that good, fresh country honey just out of the hive.

HONORING LAMAR COLLIER.

The Employees of the Western and Atlantic Make Him a Present.

Yesterday evening at the machine shops of the Western and Atlantic railroad, after the day's labors were about ended, the employees of the machine shops gathered in and around the master mechanic's office, for the purpose of presenting to Mr. Lamar Collier, for many years their foreman, now their honored master mechanic, a beautiful office secretary and a handsome notice, which, according to their arrangements, the employees had bought in Mr. Collier's absence and carried into his office. When everything was ready a committee was sent out and Mr. Collier was brought in. As he entered the office and saw the men, he was much surprised and touched. He had never dreamed of anything of the sort, and he was deeply touched at such a demonstration of the love and esteem of the men among whom he had worked for so many years.

Mr. Collier, on behalf of the employees, and as a token of their high regard for him, presented to Mr. Collier the beautiful gifts, which he accepted in a neat and appropriate little speech, full of feeling and good advice. He said that what he had received was not necessary to prove that he had their love and esteem, they were of course very gratifying to him. He hoped the relations between them would be as pleasant in the future as they had been for many years in the past. Not satisfied, however, with what had been done, the employees determined to make their master mechanic's office the handsomest in the state, and next day they bought a Brussels carpet, window shades, fire place fixtures, gas chandeliers, a beautiful inkstand and gold pen, and now, truly, Mr. Collier has one of the handsomest offices in Georgia, and perhaps the most handsome of the kind in the south.

HE MUST HANG.

The Governor Decides That Warren Price, of Johnson County, Must Hang.

Yesterday afternoon at a late hour Governor McDaniel decided not to interfere with the sentence of the court in the matter of Warren Price, whose execution is set down for to-day in Johnson county. ## WICKED WAYS.

THE CRIMES THAT CAME TO LIGHT YESTERDAY.

An Attempt at Highway Robbery on Peachtree Street—A Lady Assaulted by a Professional Chicken Thief in the Tolia—A White Tramp Plays Burglar.

About dark last night a desperate and bold attempt at highway robbery was made on Peachtree street.

Mrs. Green, who resides on that street, had been up town and started home about dusk. She managed to miss the street cars and walked rapidly. Just as she crossed Pine street she encountered a burly negro who, at the moment he was even with the lady, made a grab at her pocketbook, which she was carrying in her hand. Mrs. Green was watching the negro, and detected the motion of his hand. She quickly suspected his intention and, jerking the pocketbook from the darkey's grasp, attempted to run, but the negro grabbed her and reached for the purse again. Mrs. Green called loudly for help, and Patrolman Mercer, who was near by, heard her calls and hurried to her aid. In the mean time Mrs. Green held on to her purse with desperate tenacity, and keeping the darkey from getting it until Patrolman Mercer came up. The negro saw the advancing patrolman and stopped. Patrolman Mercer escorted the lady to home. The purse contained nearly two hundred dollars.

A CHICKEN THEIF.

Turner Cooper, a young negro man, was given a cell yesterday morning by Patrolman Cochran, who prefers the charge of chicken stealing and asserts that his prisoner knows where a chicken coop in the city is located. Early Wednesday morning Patrolman Cochran and a patrolman went to the coop and found it empty. The coop was entered and robbed of some chickens and soon after the robbery was detected the police department was furnished with a description of the thief. Early yesterday morning Patrolman Cochran found the chickens in a boy's possession and arrested the boy, who stated that his father had purchased them from Turner Cooper. The policeman accompanied the boy to his home where his statement was confirmed. The boy's father then informed Patrolman Cochran that Cooper had been selling him from time to time half dozen chickens every evening for three months and that he would be there again in six weeks. The patrolman decided to watch for Cooper's coming, and at six o'clock he walked into the place with two fine hens. Cooper was not long in reaching the city prison.

A GRAMP BURGLAR.

Mounted Officer West yesterday arrested and imprisoned John Doe, a white tramp, against whose name had been issued a warrant. Yesterday morning Doe came through Bellwood, and soon after his departure a resident of that suburb ascertained that a tramp had been in his house. The trapper was taken to the police station and on being questioned he admitted that he had been in the house and had stolen a pair of shoes. No. 19. Argument concluded.
No. 17. Argument concluded.
No. 18. Savannah, Florida and Western Railway vs. McIntosh, case from City Court of Savannah, Ga., dismissed from the docket.

For the term ending December 11, 1884, the court adjourned to 10 a. m. to-morrow.

I cannot sell you a 35 dollar movement at net cost and make you a present of a gold case.

Mrs. W. R. Watts, 324 Jones street, Atlanta, says: "I used Brown's Iron Bitters for general debility and found it all that the manufacturers claim for it. I can heartily recommend it to any one in need of a perfect tonic."

A young lady who was blamed for allowing her gloves to be discovered in a young man's pocket, stated that she had no hand in it.

Mrs. J. E. Chamberlain, 130 Iron Street, Atlanta, says: "My husband's iron Bitters as a blood purifier and tonic with entire satisfaction. I therefore recommend it."

The dark ages—the period elapsing between the time of beginning to look for a match in your bare feet and finding it.

Mr. D. E. Phillips, 327 Broad street, Augusta, Ga., says: "Brown's Iron Bitters cured me of swamp fever. I consider it an invaluable medicine."

In Thibet a woman may have four husbands. In this country it is as much as a woman can do to cut wood for one.

Mrs. Julia A. Bowen, 1226 Broad street, Augusta, Ga., says: "An old friend of mine left me two sons in a very debilitated state. Brown's Iron Bitters completely restored their health."

"I can put one touch of a rose sunset into the line of any man or woman, I shall feel that I have worked with God."

Mrs. G. T. Johnson, 112 Barnes street, Augusta, Ga., says: "My husband was completely broken down from overwork. Brown's Iron Bitters restored him to health and vigor."
